PLNL LAUNCHES SOLARPONIX PROJECT IN FIVE FENCELINE SCHOOLS

Point Lisas Nitrogen Limited (PLNL) officially launched its SolarPonix Project today, Friday 9th June 2023 at Holy Faith Convent in Couva.

The project aims to impact current and future generations of Agri-engineers to equip them with sustainable farming skills and practices. This project will introduce students to the SolarPonix system as an innovative and locally sourced sustainable technology, train them in modern agricultural practices and educate them on the value of using renewable energy to mitigate the impact of climate change. The SolarPonix Units are being manufactured by the MIC Institute of Technology.

223 Students at five participating schools are expected to benefit in the first year and 37 teachers (Primary and Secondary levels) will become trainers in our fenceline community.

In addition to nine hours of virtual training for teaching staff, PLNL is providing each school with a solar powered, aeroponic/hydroponic system, and ancillary materials.

PLNL President Fitzroy Harewood observes as Solarponix innovator, Ancel Bhagwandeen demonstrates how the unit works.

Principals and Teachers of participating schools get a demonstration from the innovator.
